

Your Return on Investment

Annual dues cover the cost of awards or badges, pack events, liability insurance, and facilities. Dues are about a hundred dollars per scout per year. The pack sponsors fundraisers each year where boys can raise funds to offset dues and activity costs.

Activities, ranging from movie and miniature golf to professional sporting events, can cost anywhere from free to thirty dollars per person, and are optional. The Pack takes advantage of group rates and Scouting discounts. On average our scout families spend twenty dollars a quarter for special activities.

Pack camps strive to be economical with an average fee of $20 per person covering two nights of camping with activities and meals included. Target shooting, model rockets, leather working, survival training, and bat house building are just a few of the many activities camp fees have covered.

Parents and guardians are critical to Cub Scouts. They attend a pack and a den meeting with the scout each month as well as join them on outings. We each do a share to make this program a huge success!

Scholarships are available and kept confidential.

Conservation

Leave No Trace and World Conservation are two of our most prominent awards for caring for the earth. Pack 455 teaches scouts how to be stewards for the earth when in the wild as well as in their community.

Patriotism

Respect for our nation and our state are demonstrated with a flag presentation at each camp out and pack meeting. The importance of patriotism and religion are emphasized in the Scout Oath.

Religion

A scout is awarded for seeking a stronger appreciation and understanding of his beliefs and the faith which his family follows. Over thirty faiths already have scout programs.

Advance in Rank. Advance in Ability.

Each rank advancement—Bobcat, Tiger, Wolf, Bear, Webelos—raises the scout to a new level of ability. These boys are training to be productive citizens.

Elect To Achieve

Pack 455 Scouts earn awards beyond their rank advancement by making the effort to be with family, learn about their community, and try new skills.

Do Your Best!

This is the Cub Scout Motto. Success is based on each individual boy's ability whether the opportunity is as a leader, a teammate, or on his own.
